Introduction

Welcome to Kings Weston House

Kings Weston House stands on the last hill before Bristol meets the sea, with panoramic views across the Bristol Channel to South Wales. This Grade 1 listed Palladian mansion is the only house in Bristol designed by Sir John Vanbrugh, the architect behind Blenheim Palace and Castle Howard.

Kings Weston is more than a building – it's 300 acres of parkland to unwind, explore and enjoy, right here in Bristol.

For centuries, the hill and its landscape were celebrated by Georgian visitors, and even feature in the setting of Jane Austen's Northanger Abbey.

Today, the estate remains a peaceful retreat and a welcome break from city life. The grounds offer open lawns, sweeping views, and a "small arboretum" of tree species that attract a wealth of wildlife. You might spot deer, foxes, and plenty of birdlife, or just enjoy a quiet stroll under the trees.

MEET THE TEAM

Meet Naomi, Our Dedicated Events Manager

For Naomi, Kings Weston House isn't just a beautiful venue. it's where her own wedding story began. Eleven years ago, Naomi got married here at Kings Weston House, never imagining that the day would mark the beginning of a whole new chapter in her life. At the time, she had spent 10 years working for John Lewis, with no formal experience in wedding planning. But after getting to know the house and falling in love with everything that goes into creating a truly special wedding, she discovered a passion that would change the course of her career.

The previous owner, Norman, took a chance on Naomi and gave her the opportunity to join the world of wedding planning. She learned everything on the job, gaining experience from the very best place possible. right here at Kings Weston House.

Eleven years on, that leap of faith has grown into a career she absolutely loves. Naomi brings a wealth of experience, genuine enthusiasm and a personal connection to the house to every wedding she helps plan. Having been a bride here herself, Naomi understands just how important every little detail is. From the first visit to the final dance, she is dedicated to making each couple feel looked after, listened to and completely at home.

Her passion for weddings has never dwindled. if anything, it has grown stronger with every couple, every celebration and every unforgettable moment she has been lucky enough to be part of. For Naomi, there really is nowhere quite like Kings Weston House — and no better job than helping others begin their own happily ever after here.
